WELCOME

OUR INVITATION TO YOU . . .

You are invited to join us in San Diego for the 22nd Annual International Child and Family Maltreatment Conference sponsored by the Chadwick Center for Children and Families at Rady Children's Hospital. An outstanding program has been planned that will bring together some of the most respected professionals from around the world to share and learn from one another. Over 1,800 professionals from 50 states and 6 continents will focus on learning and spreading the best practices available for children and families whose future depends upon us all.

In this conference, we have balanced strong science with practical experience and real world solutions built on solid evidence. During the course of 222 workshops and plenary sessions, our international faculty, of over 200, will share their insights with you. In addition to our traditional attention on medicine, law, investigation, mental health treatment, child welfare, interviewing, prevention, Child Advocacy Centers, leadership, and research, we will feature special tracks on issues affecting LGBTQ youth, offender intervention, Native American families and cross-cultural subjects. In addition, a series of new topics is offered on medical education, ethics and a week-long course on Child Fatality Investigation.

We are delighted to be joined in these efforts by a wide range of national and international collaborators with extensive support from the Department of Justice, OJJDP, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the California Department of Social Services—Office of Child Abuse Prevention, the National Child Traumatic Stress Network, and Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

Create a world where children and families are healthy and free from abuse and neglect.

WHO WE ARE

In a society that often does not want to hear or think about the abuse or violence that children and families experience, the Chadwick Center, named after our founder David L. Chadwick, at Rady Children's Hospital has created a safe place to heal from traumatic life events.

In the Forensic Medical Services Program (FMS), doctors and nurses provide medical examinations to collect forensic evidence and help children physically recover from abuse and trauma. Social workers are specifically trained to forensically interview children to assist in the investigative process.

Children and families are referred to the Trauma Counseling Program from FMS as well as from child protective services, hospital social workers, schools, and other community agencies. In the Trauma Counseling Program, the staff provides assessment-based therapy, psychological testing, psychiatric services and advocacy. Over the course of treatment, these children and families undergo incredible changes as they engage in treatment and heal from their trauma.

Families also participate in the Family Support Program, where the focus is on improving parenting skills and assisting them to find resources geared towards prevention of child maltreatment incidence.

To reach out with skills and knowledge, the Professional Education Department provides training to professionals from around the world about best practices in child maltreatment.

Over the past three years, the Chadwick Center has developed the California Evidence-Based Clearinghouse for Child Welfare (www.cachildwelfareclearinghouse.org) as a tool to disseminate information about evidence-based practices.

Chadwick Center is proud to have made lasting differences in the lives of thousands of children and families since opening our doors in 1976. We welcome you to the 22nd Annual San Diego International Conference on Child and Family Maltreatment, where we aspire to pass on the spirit of hope and healing that we see reflected everyday in the smiles of the children and families that we serve.

University of California, San Diego

Presenters:

Byron Egeland, Martha Farrell Erickson

THE MINNESOTA LONGITUDINAL STUDY OF HIGH RISK CHILDREN FROM BIRTH TO EARLY ADULTHOOD

To provide research updates from the Minnesota Longitudinal Study of high risk children which began in 1975, the 267 assessments of first time mothers and their babies were detailed and comprehensive, and have continued at regular intervals through age 28. The Study provides rich and invaluable information regarding attachment from a life span perspective that is relevant for understanding the causes and pathways leading to behavior problems, as well as competence. The findings have implications for developing prevention and intervention programs.

IMPLICATIONS FOR INTERVENTION

To educate participants about STEEP (Steps Toward Effective, Enjoyable Parenting) and the Seeing is Believing video strategy for working with parents and infants. The STEEP program evolved from the findings of the Longitudinal Study as a means to help parents learn to respond sensitively and predictably to their child's needs, and to make decisions that ensure a safe and supportive environment for the whole family.

ORIENTATION FOR NEW CHILDREN'S ADVOCACY CENTER DIRECTORS

8:00 AM – 3:00 PM

Sponsored by National Children's Alliance

Intended audience: CAC Executive Directors or Program Directors who are new to their role as a CAC Manager

CAC directors have a very unique and complex role unlike other program administrators. In particular CAC directors must coordinate multiple programs within one agency, often "supervise" staff and team that are not always in their employ, and have a comprehensive knowledge of NCA's standards. New CAC directors come to their centers from a wide variety of professional and educational backgrounds: some with management experience and some without; some with experience in child maltreatment and some without. This training seeks to address the basic issues of managing a CAC for the new director covering team coordination, board development, compliance with NCA standards, grant writing/fund development, and strategic planning. The workshop will combine didactic presentation with skill-building exercises and group discussions.

Cost: NCA Members: $150 • Non-members: $175

The registration fee includes continental breakfast and technical assistance materials.

Register directly with National Children's Alliance. Please visit www.nca-online.org
