What is the 4th International Meeting on Indigenous Child Health?

The purpose of this international collaborative conference is to focus on innovative clinical care models and community-based public health approaches for children and youth in Indigenous communities in the US, Canada, and internationally. Opportunities will be provided to present and discuss successful projects and strategies, particularly related to addressing areas of health disparity for Indigenous children and youth. Participants will have the opportunity to share, support, network, and build partnerships through a variety of educational formats.

The Conference is designed to:

1. Expand your awareness of the changing health needs of Indigenous children and the unique solutions to addressing these needs.
2. Improve your understanding of traditional health and healing practices, and the importance of including the perspectives of those with this expertise in the provision of culturally competent care in Indigenous communities.
3. Enhance your awareness of exemplary scholarly and community participatory research findings about the health and health care of Indigenous populations.
4. Promote collaboration and information exchange among people working with Indigenous children and families.
5. Provide opportunities for Indigenous students and trainees to gain new skills and insights to better respond to the determinants of Indigenous child health.
6. Enhance your understanding of the continued need for advocacy related to improving the health of Indigenous children and their families.
7. Strengthen the connections between Indigenous people worldwide.
