

IHS – ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH SPECIALIST OF THE YEAR

PURPOSE & BACKGROUND

Beginning in 1993, the Division of Environmental Health Services (DEHS) has annually recognized an outstanding Environmental Health Specialist of the Year. The award is given to the Environmental Health Specialist representing the DEHS with distinction and, through superior performance, positively impacting the health outcomes for American Indian / Alaskan Natives.

The award criteria have been reviewed and updated periodically, but have remained essentially the same since 1995. In 2007, the criteria were revised to replace the ranking system with point values in an attempt to make this process more objective. In 2016, the criteria were updated to adjust the scoring, refine the criteria and ultimately provide a clearer rating system.

ELIGIBILITY

Each IHS Area DEHS Director is requested to nominate one Environmental Health practitioner to be recognized as that Area's Environmental Health Specialist of the Year. Commissioned Corps Officers, Civil Service, Tribal employees serving in IHS funded positions, or IHS staff on detail to a Tribal organization are eligible. O-6 Commissioned Officers, GS 13 Civil Service staff, Area DEHS Directors, Area DEHS Deputy Directors, Tribal Environmental Health Program Managers/Directors, and Headquarters staff are not eligible.

AREA SELECTION PROCESS

Areas may select the nominee for their Area Environmental Health Specialist of the Year through a process of their choosing.

NOMINATION PROCESS

Each Area's Environmental Health Specialist of the Year nomination will consist of a narrative addressing their nominee's contribution to the environmental health profession and DEHS mission. The format of the narrative should include the following four sections: 1) introduction, 2) professionalism, 3) special accomplishments, and 4) summary. The Area nomination will be forwarded to Headquarters by 08 January 2021. The nomination should be written as a Word document that is no more than two pages, 12-point font, and has margins no less than 0.5 inches. Nominations not meeting these criteria will not be considered for the award. The IHS DEHS Director or designee will review the nominations to ensure they meet the criteria.

NATIONAL SELECTION PROCESS

The Area DEHS Directors will select the national IHS Environmental Health Specialist of the Year using the following methodology. Each Area DEHS Director will be provided a set of Area nominations compiled by Headquarters staff. Area DEHS Directors will score the nominations using the assigned points listed in the scoring criteria document.

Area DEHS Directors will not score the nominee from their own Area. The final completed score sheets will be sent to Headquarters by 24 January 2021. Headquarters staff will review the Area score sheets. The overall winner will be the nominee with the most points. In the event of a tie, each Area will score the tied nominees and the scoring process will be repeated.

SCORING CRITERIA

Category: Professionalism (30 Points)

Credit will be given for demonstrating commitment to professional development and promoting the environmental health profession. There is no time constraint (i.e., within the last year) associated with Professional Credential, Technical Certifications, and Advanced Degree criteria.

Category: Special Accomplishments (70 Points)

A single special accomplishment is encouraged for scoring purposes but additional accomplishments may be considered. The nomination should be based on work completed during the award period. However, it is recognized that special accomplishments or a significant body of work may culminate during the award year as a result of work completed (e.g. project planning/management, data collection, policy change, guideline development) prior to the award year.
