Live Session Originally Presented on: November 14, 2018

Target Audience: Physicians, Nurses, Dietitians and other Healthcare Professionals working in Clinic and Community Health Settings

Description:

There is a strong body of evidence based knowledge supporting correlations between a number of infectious diseases and diabetes. This seminar will address recommendations for identification and public health management of persons with chronic Hepatitis C. The importance of Hepatitis C identification and treatment in the context of patient needs overall and implications for changes in practice will also be discussed.

Training Objectives and Outcomes: As a result of completing this training, participants will be able to:

1. Educate patients on the causes and effects of infection with the Hepatitis C virus - transmission, disease processes and sequelae.
2. Examine the relationship between Hepatitis C and diabetes.
3. Utilize current CDC Hepatitis C testing recommendations and identify testing strategies that maybe more effective in providing care to American Indians/Alaska Natives.
4. Integrate Hepatitis C screening and treatment with existing patient care and services.
