Cimarron Clinic, Albuquerque, NM
My interest in providing this lecture came from my own experiences over the past 20 years as a clinical social worker, nurse and nurse practitioner working with parents, guardians, grandparents and relatives who are parenting children with behavioral and mental health disorders, whether mild, moderate, severe, acute and chronic issues…
Why am I Talking to You?

- Raise awareness
- Provide resources
- Open for discussion
- Encourage understanding of mental health providers of the needs of parents
- If parents have more support, child will do better
Parenting a Child with Mental Health Issues is a Multifaceted Issue from Birth through Adulthood
In Preparing for this Lecture

- I scoured the literature for information about supporting parents of children with mental health problems
- Found no articles/research on SUPPORTING parents
- Found many articles on parenting children with developmental/cognitive disabilities, physical disabilities
- Found articles pertaining to the mental illness of the parent and how it impacts the future of the child.
- Also found articles about the dysfunctional patterns of families with children with mental health problems......
- Not strengths based.........
Parenting a Child with Mental Health Issues is a Lifelong Adventure

Supporting Parents:
Type of Support Depends on:

- Age of child
- Age of parents
- Individual needs of parents
- Siblings with or without mental illness
- What diagnosis the child has been given
- How long the child has had the diagnoses
- The positive and negative experiences of parents and children thus far in the system of care
- Child and parent understanding of their diagnosis...ADHD, Anxiety, Mood Disorder, Psychosis, ODD, Conduct Issues, Tourettes
- Whether they have a partner and/or relative to help with parenting the children
Parents often Need

- PERSONAL support in the TELLING of their stories with their children...
- the time Ginny threatened suicide with a knife and ran into the street and the police yelled at the mother for not supervising her better....
- When Sammy jumped off the roof as he just knew he was superman and broke his leg.....
- the time Joseph told his teacher that his mother left him alone all weekend and Children’s Protective Services were called and the school did not realize a relative had been caring for him over the weekend bc they did not ask
- when a mother tried to get Lindsay and Albert (4 and 3) into the car at Wal Mart and Albert began screaming and yelling and struggling to get out of the mother’s arms and passersby’s scowled stating that she couldn’t control her kids.
Parents need Guidance

- To help them navigate the jungle of resources to help them find
  - Respite
  - Financial support
  - Medical providers that are not afraid to care for their child
  - Therapists
Parents Need Information

- Education and placement in classroom
- Special education department of the school system to help with testing and placement
- Often need an ADVOCATE so they understand their child’s right to an education

Support and Care of Patients

- Has been sorely neglected... who cares and supports them?
- Each other...
- Lots of grass roots support groups online, across the state and here in Albuquerque.
- Not as many resources in the rural areas of the state.
