Duration: 1 hour

Presenter:

Avron Kriechman, MD, Psychiatrist, University of New Mexico

Description:

Professional codes of ethics provide a common set of principles and standards upon which behavioral health providers build their professional work. They have as their goals the welfare and protection of the individuals and groups with whom providers work. They require a lifelong effort to act ethically; to encourage ethical behavior by students, supervisees, employees, and colleagues; and to consult with others concerning ethical problems.

This webinar provides a review of ethical dilemmas most commonly faced by behavioral health providers working with children, adolescents, and families including school-based behavioral health, minor rights, parent/guardian rights, informed consent, confidentiality, documentation, parent/guardian consent or assent, release of information to schools and the complication of academic records, duty to warn, and dual relationships.

Outcomes/Objectives:

1. Examine fundamental ethical principles governing the practice of providing behavioral health care in schools and health care settings
2. Evaluate ethical responsibilities of behavioral health providers in relation to patients, colleagues, the community, the profession, and self.
3. Apply the steps of ethical decision-making in professional practice.

Target Audience:

Members of the healthcare team
